Instructions for Jack and Jill, Part 1

Introduction

A day's lesson consists of two worksheets on facing pages. In Jack and Jill Student Workbook, Part 1, the left-hand page presents a nursery rhyme for your student to read and study. The right-hand page has letter boxes the student will use to write words from dictation. Read the directions for Lesson 1 carefully for an explanation of the rationale behind each of the exercises.

Since reading ability varies greatly at this level, you should read the nursery rhyme with your student, carefully following the directions shown on the worksheet. Each activity is purposefully planned to provide maximum benefit. For example, pointing to each word during guided reading focuses the student's attention on the letters within the word, improves eye-hand coordination, maintains left-to-right eye movement, and helps the student practice a return sweep to the next line of print. Clapping in rhythm during guided reading enables students to hear each unit of sound, or syllable, which develops the auditory memory necessary for accurate spelling.

In most cases, the same rhyme is used for all five worksheets in each lesson. This is intentional. As students become more familiar with the passage, non-phonetic and high-frequency sight words will become impressed on the visual memory, enabling the students to spell them more accurately in their independent writing. Guide your student in answering the questions under the passage. Students may be directed to underline specific words or to circle letters or marks of punctuation. Later, colored pencils or highlighters will be used for specific spelling patterns.

The right-hand page of each lesson provides letter boxes in which your student can practice writing words. For the first two lessons, the student will copy the words. Starting in Lesson 3, students will write the words that you dictate. The word lists for dictation begin on page 5 of this Handbook.

Lesson 4: Details in Print, Reading the Words Back, Short u

- Some of the directions for the nursery rhyme are a little different this week. On worksheet 4C, your student will be asked to find all of the -ed endings and mark them in pink or red using a colored pencil or highlighter. We are beginning to teach a color code for different letter groups that will be used throughout the curriculum. You can find a complete guide to this process, called “chunking,” on page 33. Other questions in this lesson involve recognizing vocabulary and meaning. Give the student as much help as he needs—this is not a test!

- Insist that your student read each word back after dictation if she is not doing so already. When a student sounds out a word letter-by-letter in order to read it back, she is practicing the skill of decoding. Decoding is a completely different neurological task than encoding, and the brain must be able to do both. When students understand that they have to read the words back at the end of dictation, they think about each word more carefully as they write each letter and say each sound. If we do not ask students to do this, they will not process the words in the same careful way.
- Beginning readers may struggle to read words back. Read the words together until your student feels comfortable reading them alone.

Daily Dictation List

For Jack and Jill Student Workbook, Part 1, we have included a word list for ease of instruction. This list is not intended to be lengthy or exhaustive. The words provided are simply a means to an end: developing strong phonemic awareness, which will equip students with the ability to encode and decode words as they progress in both spelling and reading.

The Daily Dictation List is designed to provide a helpful option that will simplify lesson preparation and correspond to the lesson focus. Also available is the General Dictation List sorted by vowel sounds, beginning blends, and so on. If students need extra practice with a specific vowel sound, for example, you may want to use words from the general list rather than the daily list. Both options are available so you can adapt the program to fit the needs of your student.

Please note: In the letter boxes we never use words that have a vowel followed by r (car, stir, blur). The r changes the sound of the vowel, which can confuse students who are still trying to understand sound-to-letter correspondence. After all, er, ir, and ur all sound the same! This letter pattern will be addressed later in Jack and Jill.

Instructions for Jack and Jill, Part 2

Introduction

Jack and Jill Student Workbook, Part 2 continues the nursery rhyme format, and the daily worksheets still consist of two pages. In this book, students will continue to “chunk” a variety of letter combinations. Copywork sections are longer, and the student will begin to write whole sentences from dictation. There will also be opportunities for free writing or drawing in response to the passage. As before, feel free to move to a new lesson each week, even if the previous lesson was not completed. Common words and letter patterns will be repeated many times.

On the fourth day of each lesson, your student has the opportunity for creative self-expression. As he responds to the nursery rhymes, he can explore different forms of communication, including narrating, writing, and illustrating. Students at this age may have limited writing skills but not limited imaginations. “No Rule Day” offers a chance for their imaginations to soar as they write or dictate or illustrate. We encourage parents not to correct or grade these artistic expressions. As a result, your student is more likely to enjoy the writing experience while he becomes comfortable with the process. There are more suggestions for No Rule Day on page 36.

On the last day of the week, you will dictate the passage for your student to write. When you start passage dictation, relax the student and tell her not to worry; you will provide all punctuation and capitalization and help her with difficult words. You will do this for just 10 minutes—no more! Read the passage slowly, word by word, until your student struggles with a word. Stop to help, but don’t stop the clock. It is important to address misspellings as they occur without worrying about time. When 10 minutes are up, stop and count the number of words written correctly. You can read more important information about Passage Dictation on page 38.

Lesson 22: Bossy r Chunks

- This lesson will focus on Bossy r chunks. When a vowel (a, e, i, o, u) is followed by an r, the vowel sound changes. Look at the directions for Lesson 9 in this Handbook to review how r changes the sound of a vowel. Mark Bossy r chunks in purple.
- When the 10 minutes of dictation are up, the student should count the number of words that are spelled correctly and record that number at the top of the page. Be positive; always consider the number right, not the number wrong. It may help to be generous as well. It is fine for students to count the words provided at the beginning of the dictation lines.

1. Read the rhyme to your student.
2. Read it together slowly. Have the student point to each word as you read.
3. Together, look for Bossy r chunks and mark them in purple.

Answer Key

- 4A Diddle, fiddle, moon, and spoon should be underlined.
- 4B The word fiddle should be underlined.
- 4C The -ed endings in the words jumped and laughed should be marked in pink or red.
- 4D The words cat, cow, and dog should be underlined.
- 4E The word The/the should be underlined (7 times).

Sometimes a word has overlapping chunks. For example, a vowel chunk may overlap with a Bossy r chunk (heard), or a consonant chunk may overlap with an ending (really). In the answer key, we have tried to remain consistent with the focus of each lesson. In lessons with multiple chunks, we marked vowel chunks before Bossy r chunks and Bossy r chunks before consonant chunks.

If the student chooses a different chunking pattern than the one marked in the answer key, please do not consider it incorrect. Instead, take a moment to talk about the word and the overlap of chunks. You might ask the student which letter pattern he thinks would be most helpful for him to remember and let him mark that one. Remember that the goal is to create a visual memory for non-phonetic words.
